DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 5/1 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Funamoto et al. (US 5,949,505).

Referring to Claim 1 Funamoto et al. disclose (Figs.2-4) a LCD including a light source [22] disposed along the end face of a light guide plate [20], a reflector [23a] enclosing a light source and reflecting a light emitted from the light source to the end face of the light guide and a housing including an upper case [2] and a lower case [3] and an opening portions provided on side walls of upper and lower cases against the reflector [23a].

Referring to Claim 5/1 Funamoto et al. disclose (Figs.2-4) a lighting unit and a liquid crystal panel [10] disposed on a front of the lighting device.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 2875

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Funamoto et al. (US 5,949,505) in view of Matsuda et al. (US 5,929,950).

Funamoto et al. disclose the instant claimed invention except for convex portion formed on a housing.

Matsuda discloses (Fig.5) a liquid crystal display including a housing having an upper frame [2], a lower frame [8], a convex portion 8a and an opening portion formed on one of surfaces of the convex portion.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to provide the housing of the device of Funamoto et al. with convex portion, as taught by Matsuda, in order to obtain engagement between portions of the housing.

Claims 4 and 5/4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Funamoto et al. (US 5,949,505) in view of (JP 04264488).

Funamoto et al. disclose the instant claimed invention except for housing made of insulative thermally conductive material.

(JP 04264488) discloses a lamp housing made of thermally conductive resin, which, as well known in the art, is an electric insulative material.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to provide the housing of the device of Funamoto et al. made of thermally conductive resin, as taught by (JP 04264488), in order to prevent overheating of the device and prevent user from an electrical shock.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 3 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art of record fails to show a housing with a bent portion formed by inwardly bending a predetermined region and cutting a remaining portion, and a step portion formed by the bent portion, forming opening portion.
